GERMAN, ITALIAN PRISONERS IN CANADA, TORPEDOED

Many Drown As Arandora Star Sunk By U-Boat

German High Command Today Announced That Vessel Had Been Torpedoed—1,000 Survivors Landed

By SAM ROBERTSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 3.—The 15,501-ton British liner Arandora Star, carrying Germans and Italians who were to be interned in Canada, has been torpedoed and sunk off the coast of Ireland.

British soldiers were aboard as guards. It was reported that many German and Italian prisoners went down with the ship.

(Safe arrival of the first detachment of German prisoners to be sent to Canada for internment was announced from Quebec last weekend.)

The German high command communique today announced that a German submarine had torpedoed the BERLIN, July 3.—Following is the text of today's German communique: "Lt.-Capt. Shubart with his U-boat sank 24,000 registered tons of enemy merchant shipping, among which was the British steamer Arandora Star, 15,500 tons, west of North Channel (between Scotland and Ireland)."

Arandora Star west of North Channel, the strait between Ireland and Scotland.

About 1,000 scantily-clad survivors were landed by another British ship at a Scottish port today.

Two soldiers who survived said the ship was struck without warning.

Germans, Italians Curse U-Boat

"We cursed the U-boat, but not so much as did the Germans and Italians," said one soldier. "They were almost ferocious in their denunciation of this type of warfare. So was the scramble that we had no opportunity of getting into lifeboats."

Another British soldier said the Germans were "big hulking brutes" who tried to sweep aside the Italians in a rush for lifeboats and had to be "forcibly" restrained.

He added that the "bitter hostility" between Germans and Italians was apparent on both the Arandora Star and the rescue ship.

The Blue Star Line, owners of the liner, said that a "fair proportion" of the crew was saved. The water was strewn with wreckage and bodies after the torpedo exploded, survivors stated.

No estimate of the casualties was available, but the Italians, most of whom were traders in England before Mussolini declared war, were stated to have been the worst sufferers.

Canadian Ship First To Rescue

A Canadian ship was the first boat to answer the SOS that crackled out when the torpedo struck.

"This Canadian ship raced up with every ounce of her speed," said a rescued guard. "The ship loaded herself to the hilt with men plucked from the water."

On board the Canadian ship the crew did "everything possible to make us comfortable," he added.

There were understood to have been 2,000 persons aboard the liner when she left Britain.

RT. HON. R. B. BENNETT
70th Birthday

LONDON, July 3.—Today was the 70th birthday of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative prime minister of Canada, but he did not celebrate the occasion. As usual Mr. Bennett left his country house near Dorking in the morning and spent the day in London attending to business affairs. He received a number of messages of congratulations.

NAZI PLANES RENEW RAIDS ON BRITAIN

15 Killed, 144 Injured In Bomb Attacks Over 24 Hours

LONDON, July 3.—German bombers in all-day attacks over Britain today killed two persons and injured 22.

The raiders dropped bombs on the southwest coast, in the northeast of England, in Scotland and on the eastern English shore. Three German bombers were shot down, one of them in a fierce fight off the southeast coast. Today's casualties brought to 15 dead and approximately 144 wounded the total for the last 24 hours.

R.A.F. STABS BACK

New ships at the German Ruhr, Westphalia, Belgium and Denmark were made meantime by the Royal Air Force, the air ministry announced.

German raiders were continuously in the air over England today, both morning and afternoon.

In southwest England a big building was set on fire.

A statement from the air and home security ministries said:

"This afternoon bombs were dropped by enemy aircraft on the northeast coast of England and Scotland, causing injuries to about 16 people."

"Bombs were also dropped on the eastern counties and southeast England."

"Casualties are reported in a Suffolk town where two persons have been killed and about six injured."

PACKARD WILL BUILD MOTORS FOR BRITAIN

British United Press Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin
WASHINGTON, July 3.—William S. Knudsen, production manager of the National Defense Commission, announced today that the Packard Motor Co. of Detroit, has agreed to build 3,000 Rolls Royce airplane engines for the U.S. government and 6,000 for the British government.

The agreement, Knudsen said, is subject to approval by the Packard Company's board of directors.

M. M. Callahan, president of Packard Motors, said the plant will be toolled and ready to begin production ten months from the date of the contract which was expected to be signed shortly.

Callahan told Knudsen that he estimated that initial production would be at the rate of 30 engines a month, reaching a total of 840 a month after 15 months.

The British government recently licensed the U.S. government to manufacture the Rolls Royce Merlin type liquid-cooled aircraft engine.

The National Defense Commission negotiated with the Ford Motor Co. to manufacture them. Ford agreed to make engines for the U.S. government but the deal fell through when Ford refused to produce them for Britain.

SEELY URGES CANADIANS TO ENGAGE ENEMY

Dominion Troops Have More Novel Conception Of Warfare

LONDON, July 3.—Lord Mottistone, who as "Jack" Seely commanded the Canadian cavalry in the First Great War, suggested in the House of Lords today that Canadian troops should be chosen to engage the enemy if he lands in Britain because of their "more novel conception of warfare."

He recommended the Canuck soldiers not because he served with them in the last war "and so know their value, but because among these Canadian Divisions—and this also applies to other divisions overseas—there are more people with more novel conceptions of warfare."

OFFICER AGREES

Lord Mottistone said he had made the suggestion to a Canadian officer with a distinguished record, who has been introduced to a motion in the upper house asking the government to take prompt action to increase the offensive power and equipment of the citizens of Britain.

Equipment had been greatly increased, he declared, but the method of meeting an invasion needed more consideration.

"I've seen ridiculous tank traps, barbed wire and so on along the beaches which would prevent our people from going down to engage."

STIFF TERM HANDED OUT ON SEDITION

Pleading guilty to a breach of the Defence of Canada Act, a member of the Canadian Active Service Force, W. E. Puffer, formerly of Oak Lake, Sask., was sentenced to 12 months in jail at hard labor in city prison today.

In passing sentence, most severe yet imposed here for defence regulation offences, Magistrate Miller said: "It seems that this kind of thing could easily be very serious. Discipline must be maintained in the army at all times."

According to the evidence of an R.C.M.P. investigator Puffer had declared: "I'm a good German. My father and mother were good Germans and I'll shoot every officer in the back when I get overseas."

The former soldier stated that he was so drunk when the alleged statements were made that he had no recollection of them.

Evacuees Coming Middle Of Month

First group of children evacuated from Great Britain, numbering about 200, are expected to arrive in Alberta about the middle of July. It was reported by provincial officials Wednesday. As of the evacuees range between five and 15 years and homes to which they will be sent are now being investigated.

Military Plane Base In Interior Alaska Nearing Completion

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Alaska Editor
FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 3.—On 300 acres of a flat, sun-baked piece of interior Alaska the United States army has completed preliminary work for the runways of an airport which will serve both as an air defence base and as a tactical training centre at the "top of the world."

Five air bases are under construction in Alaska by the army and the navy. At a cost of perhaps $25,000,000 the army is now planning to set up at least the embryo of an air defence system.

Shah Of Persia Plans Invasion Of Mosul Area

Turkey Vitrally Interested In Possible Aggression By Iran, Which Now Is Pro-German

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

ISTANBUL, July 3.—Well-informed Turkish quarters asserted today that they expect a German-inspired drive against the oil-rich state of Iraq, which has an alliance with Great Britain. Iraq, it was said, already has asked Turkey what help could be expected in the event of possible aggression by Iran (Persia), which now, according to informed opinion here, is pro-Nazi.

The Shah of Iran, Reza Khan Pahlavi, is feared here to have plans for carving a mid-eastern empire for himself by collaborating with the Germans in their long-range program for a "March to the east."

Iraq was reported fearing that the Persians will first claim the province of Kerbala, which they consider theirs since it is the centre of Shiite (Persian) Mohammedanism.

Turks also feel that the war will soon spread to Syria in view of France's apparent determination to hold it and failing that, Britain's plan to take it over to protect, in turn, Palestine and Egypt.

Failure Sure For German Invasion Of Great Britain

British Government Determined To Disregard "Peace Feelers" Until Hitlerism Is Stamped Out In Europe

By FREDERICK KUH
British United Press, Exclusive Cable To The Edmonton Bulletin.

LONDON, July 3.—Key foreign diplomats in London believe that the war will be deadlocked after an unsuccessful attempt by Germany to invade Britain and that peace discussions will then be started, a survey indicated today.

Diplomats have been reporting to their governments that Britain shows no inclination of wanting peace talks now. They have been expressing the conviction that Germany will fail to conquer Britain by invasion.

It was stressed repeatedly that come what may the British government was firm in its aims to carry on the war until Hitlerism has been stamped out and will disregard all German "peace feelers."

They expect big air raids in which grave damage will be inflicted on both countries, but they believe that these raids will be incisive.

One prominent foreign ambassador told the British United Press that German agents had recently presented peace suggestions to a group of private citizens here and that the private citizens were rebuffed when they sounded official quarters on them.

Based on the German proposals were reported to be:

1.—British recognition of a new German empire.

TWO PRINCESSES ARE TO REMAIN IN OLD COUNTRY

LONDON, July 3.—The King and Queen have firmly rejected suggestions from influential quarters that the Princess Elizabeth, 13, and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, be sent out of the country to one of the many safe havens for a German invasion. The Daily Mail said today.

Repeated efforts to persuade their Majesties to send the two Princesses to a safer land have received this answer in effect: "We all face a common peril. Thousands of parents in this country are compelled to keep their children at home. We would prefer to share whatever family perils there may be with parents of this country."

The attempts to get the royal children out of the country have been rebuffed, the Daily Mail said, since the threat of invasion has become acute. But, the paper added, they always have received the same reply "deeply indicative of the feelings of the King and Queen at the present time."

WIDE MARKET LOOMING FOR ALBERTA OIL

Hon. N. E. Tanner Returns From Conference At Ottawa

Resulting from recent Dominion government action, expanded markets are looming for Alberta oil, according to Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines. He is back at his office following a conference with Dominion officials at Ottawa.

While in the east, he said, discussion took place regarding feasibility of constructing a pipe line from Turner Valley eastward. This would insure new markets for Alberta products and would mean that the oil would be made more readily available to Canadian users, which would mean strongly favored.

HAS WIDE POWERS

Mr. Tanner said that the Dominion had visited wide powers in George R. Cottrill, who has been appointed controller of Canadian petroleum production.

Among Mr. Cottrill's tasks will be finding a market for possible increased production from Turner Valley, estimated as probable.

ANTI-SEMITIC RIOTS FLARE IN RUMANIA

Scores Reported Injured, Some Fatally, In Widespread Disorders

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BUCHAREST, July 3.—Anti-Semitic rioting spread rapidly throughout Rumania today, complicating King Carol's difficult problem of trying to save his kingdom from further dismemberment.

Scores were injured, some believed fatally, in a number of riots last night in Bucharest and other places ranging as far as Jassy, near the border of Russian-occupied Bessarabia. Today they extended throughout the country.

Official quarters made no effort to minimize the seriousness of these disorders, coming at a time when Hungarians were massed on the frontier in support of Hungary's claim for return of Transylvania and when Bulgarians were pressing for a similar annexation of Southern Dobruja.

The Rumanian parliament was scheduled to meet today after two postponements.

MOUSSOLINI CONTACTED

King Carol was reported today to have sent a message to Premier Mussolini, the nature of which was unknown, and to have received a reply yesterday. He also received the German minister, Johann Fickert, in a long audience after the latter returned from a flying trip to Germany. The axis powers were scheduled to meet today after two postponements.

ALBERTA BANK BILL OPPOSED BY 2 LEADERS

Finance Minister and Tory Chief Are Against Bank Measure

OTTAWA, July 3.—Incorporation of an Alberta provincial bank on lines proposed by New Democracy members was opposed in the House of Commons last night by the Finance Minister, Hon. J. L. Ralston, and Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson.

The Alberta provincial Bank Act came up for the second reading in the first private members' hour this session but was "talked out," discussion not having ended within the hour.

While sponsors of the bill cited provision of an hour last night for discussion of the Alberta Bank bill was under an arrangement proposed by the prime minister. It is not known if further time will be set aside for such discussion. If it is, under normal procedure, this bill would be on the bottom of the list, and it is quite possible it will not be considered again at this session.

HANSON TAKES UP DEBATE ON 1940 BUDGET

Tory Leader Does Not Blame Government For Avoiding Inflation

OTTAWA, July 3.—Prohibition of sale and consumption of liquor for the war's duration was advocated Tuesday by Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson in the House of Commons in the course of his speech on the budget.

Complete prohibition of drinking bill at $200,000,000, Mr. Hanson said prohibition should be initiated "as a purely economic measure," but he added it might not be feasible "for reasons I shall not enlarge upon."

FAVORS PARTIAL INFLATION

The first speaker when debate on the budget was resumed after the holiday adjournment, Mr. Hanson declared his belief in "a reasonably limited amount of inflation" as a war measure, but in view of the danger of inflation he did not blame the government for avoiding this method.

Mr. Hanson criticized only certain parts of the spending bill. He regretted there was no tax on liquor and said a tax of at least one gallon on gasoline was expected and should have been imposed.

Income tax impositions did not have even on the budget, Mr. Hanson said. About 12,000 people of the $6,000 to $30,000 salary brackets were to pay an additional $50,000,000, which he believed was far removed from "equality" in taxation, which Finance Minister J. L. Ralston had named as his objective.

Announcing the budget debate at night, the house received from Victor Quelin (N.D.-Acadia) an amendment to a Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (C.C.F.) amendment to the budget, calling for the Bank of Canada to issue currency and credit. The C.C.F. amendment before the house proposed absorption of 100 cents of excess profits during the war instead of 75 per cent.

CRITICIZES BUDGET

At the afternoon session Mrs. Doris Nielsen (Unit-North) declared the budget declared support the government nor its budget even if she were painted as un-patriotic. The budget foretold inflation and enslavement of future generations of "sons and daughters" in the middle class down to poverty, Mrs. Nielsen declared.

Dan McIvor (Lib. Fort William) lauded the budget and the way it had been presented, like Mr. Hanson he held there should have been complete closing down of the liquor business for the war's duration.

Mr. Hanson urged a federal tax of at least one per cent on gasoline and further elimination of exemptions under the sales tax.

Approving the proposal to increase the excess profits tax he said it was a proper policy for war time but excessive income and profit taxes in England by the end of the war would be great injury to the state in peace time if a capitalist system is to be maintained.

"It is no crime to accumulate a moderate degree of wealth. Most of us have striven hard to accumulate capital and I venture to say that the most of the accumulation of capital in this country has been attained by the exercise of the good old-fashioned virtue of thrift."

ASKS FASTER RETURNS

With all the money piled upon existing requirements placed upon business, there was a multiplicity of returns and taxes which bore heavily upon business organizations, Mr. Hanson said. He asked the government for returns be lightened if possible.

Mr. Hanson said the government's financial policy should be based on confidence in the ultimate victory of the British cause, and should make every possible effort toward that end.

There was no question of the readiness of the people to pour out their resources in whatever quantity was necessary to ensure the maximum effort for Canada.

Comparing the nation to the offspring of two great races, cognizant of the gravity of the occasion, they Canadians with their courage and courage and, like our kindred in Britain they will give their blood, their treasure, their lives for the cause. He said this condition that this government give the highest type of leadership.

CALLED "UNPatriotic"

Mr. Quelin termed the budget "unpatriotic" in that it increased taxation would restrict demand for Canada for goods of which there was already a surplus.

He drew attention to the "more than five hours" taken up by Mr. Hanson and Joseph Harris, (Con. Toronto, Danforth) in the House of Commons said he did not think it logical that New Democracy members should restrict their remarks to a plea from Mr. Hanson Tuesday afternoon that the budget debate be quickly concluded.

Anything that was financially desirable for Canada was financially possible under a moderated financial system, Mr. Quelin said. While Germany had in effect said "in hell with money" and built herself into a position of strength by her warshiping at the shrine of money.

The budget had been called a "patriotic" budget but it would be "patriotic" because it would retard

By TOM YARBROUGH

SOMEWHERE ON THE ENGLISH COAST, July 3.—Drawn bayonets of Britain's first fighting

glider in the first watch along England's new front line—beaches cleared of holiday crowds and swarmed with gun emplacements and pillboxes.

Guns are wheeled into place, pointing out to sea. Sentries stand ready to cry the warning and fire the first shots against expected blisking troops.

TOUGHER DEFENCES

Military officers yesterday took reporters on a tour of defenses around this once-teeming beach resort from which the civil populace is barred, effective last night.

Guides pointed out machine gun emplacements and heavier guns hidden in the hills behind.

Troops were seen along the sandy fringes from Dunkerque, bitterly experienced in the Nazi war technique, but ready for another "blitzkrieg."

The Germans chased them out of Flanders, but it's different now, as one veteran put it, "because we're fighting for our lives."

The troops huddle Bren gun carriers resembling light tanks over hills and along the beach, and smoke screens in rehearsal for attack.

The depth of the coast defence system was not disclosed, but one high officer commented: "It's deep, only a few civilians turned out for their last day on the beach."

They took the sand beside concrete pillboxes which the British officers say are as strong as the concrete of the May line and not so easily attacked.

PREMIER PAYS VISIT

Mr. Prime Minister Churchill, who has said "We will fight on the beaches and in the air," yesterday visited the Sussex coast himself for a quick inspection of the defence works.

On this recent beach a troop of uniformed schoolgirls carrying gas masks, marched into the sand in a column like soldiers—escorted by a nurse.

Over the water an airplane dropped practice bombs that sent up white smoke puffs against the horizon.

Back in the hills artillerymen drilled with practice firing, aiming at targets in the air.

Along with the defence works, anti-aircraft batteries are placed to command the sky over the coast.

One conducting officer nodded to an artilleryman as we left, and observed: "The C.C.F. amendment to the budget, calling for the Bank of Canada to issue currency and credit."

The gunner glanced suggestively at the sky, grinned, and replied: "And probably a warmer night."

MONTH MAY IS SUNNIEST FOR 18 YEARS

LONDON, July 3.—Now it can be told. The month of May was the sunniest in 18 years with rainfall only 3 of an inch.

LONDON, July 3.—Field Marshal Lord Milne, former chief of the British Expeditionary Force, has been appointed honorary colonel of the British Pioneers.

The British Pioneers, a unit of laborers comprised mainly of First Great War veterans.

Lord Milne, who was appointed in charge of British forces in Palestine and Transjordan, was appointed honorary colonel of the British Pioneers in West Africa, controlling forces in Gambia, the Gold Coast, Nigeria and Sierra Leone.

Alien Miner Gets Three-Month Term

COLEMAN, July 3.—Paul Boyke, alien miner, yesterday was sentenced to three months in prison for being an alien and failing to report for registration.

Boyke, who was given one month, to report concurrently with the longer term, for failing to report for registration, was also recommended by the court to be deported.

Not least among acts of treachery were the policies which had permitted full expansion of production and permitted widespread "nepotism."

Imposed in the budget should bring home to Canadian people "the supreme realization of the fact that we are in a war."

Shaw (N.D. Red Deer), but he doubted if that realization had been made by all members of the Commons.

People, preoccupied with news of the war, were not to be deterred from the realization that we are in a war.

While Germany had in effect said "in hell with money" and built herself into a position of strength by her warshiping at the shrine of money.

Rumania Bows Before Soviet Demands For Bessarabia

King Carol of Rumania has bowed to the ultimatum of Soviet Russia demanding cession of Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina. After sending an appeal for help to Adolf Hitler, King Carol removed the Rumanian troops from these provinces and left them undefended. Russian troops moved in without hindrance. Rumanian demands for Bessarabia and Bukovina has long been expected and Rumanian troops, sent, have been kept in readiness for any armed thrust by the Soviet, while Rumanian artillery, upper left, has been trained on the border. Troops of the Rumanian army shown, lower left, in the old fort at Herta as they look across the Dniester river towards Russia at the border. A novel feature of this defence system is a network of canals that can be filled with oil from subterranean pipes and set afire. Barbed wire entanglements which have been strung along the border, are shown, lower centre. These defences, however, were not employed against the Russian advance.

Six-year-old David, who declined to tell reporters his surname—wandered off from his comrades to gaze intently at Quebec's towering cliffs.

Col. Ralston, in an amendment, moved to refer the "subject matter" of the bill to the standing committee on banking and commerce for consideration and report.

This did not appear a "very courageous course" to Mr. Hanson, who warned the New Democracy members that the banking committee would prove the burying place of the bill.

Mr. H. Blackmore (N.D. Lethbridge), sponsoring the bill, reviewed at some length the record of the present Alberta administration.

It was the only province not increasing its debt during the period it had been in office and had dealt realistically with the debt problem, applying the principle now generally recognized by the Dominion of adjusting debt to the debtor's capacity to pay.

EXPENSES ARE CUT

The province had been unable to meet all its obligations, resulting in default, but they were obligations incurred by the government in a situation which no government could have met fully.

The present government had cut expenses and increased revenue. Through a central purchasing board alone it would save $400,000 a year.

The people of Alberta and their government would be shareholders in the proposed bank, he said, and its directors would be cabinet ministers of the province. It was strictly publicly owned and operated.

assurance from the former finance minister, Hon. C. A. Dunning, that an Alberta Bank Act would be facilitated if it stuck to the rules, the bill before parliament was attacked as contravening several sections of the Bank Act.

Col. Ralston, in an amendment, moved to refer the "subject matter" of the bill to the standing committee on banking and commerce for consideration and report.

This did not appear a "very courageous course" to Mr. Hanson, who warned the New Democracy members that the banking committee would prove the burying place of the bill.

Mr. H. Blackmore (N.D. Lethbridge), sponsoring the bill, reviewed at some length the record of the present Alberta administration.

It was the only province not increasing its debt during the period it had been in office and had dealt realistically with the debt problem, applying the principle now generally recognized by the Dominion of adjusting debt to the debtor's capacity to pay.

The province had been unable to meet all its obligations, resulting in default, but they were obligations incurred by the government in a situation which no government could have met fully.

The present government had cut expenses and increased revenue. Through a central purchasing board alone it would save $400,000 a year.

The people of Alberta and their government would be shareholders in the proposed bank, he said, and its directors would be cabinet ministers of the province. It was strictly publicly owned and operated.

U.S. PLACES CONTROL OVER ARMS EXPORTS

Move Is Made To Guard Against Shortage In United States

WASHINGTON, July 3.—President Roosevelt yesterday established strict control over the export of numerous vital war materials to guard against a shortage in the United States.

Immediately after signing a bill which gave him authority to do so, he issued a proclamation banning export of arms, July 3, except upon specific license of rubber, silk, wool, hides, aluminum, asbestos and other materials and metals, and certain electronic, aircraft parts and machine tools.

The proclamation enjoined "all officers" to exercise "the utmost diligence" to enforce the restrictions and warned violations "will be rigorously prosecuted."

One of the most important items on the control list was machine tools which are essential in manufacture of arms. The list also included power-driven and metal working machinery amounting to $27,535,612, of which about $4,000,000 represented engine and turret lathes.

A large purchaser of machine tools is Soviet Russia whose Ambassador Constantin Gurnaksky, recently protested to the state department against alleged detention of some cargoes under a so-called "export control" law.

The granting or refusing of export licenses is within the power of the secretary of state acting upon the advice of the new administrator of control.

Licenses granted for export may be revoked by him on his own initiative or by the state department upon the advice of the new administrator of control.

The list contained the names of 16 killed or fatally wounded, 126 wounded, 20 missing, and 19 previously reported missing men prisoners of war, one previously reported missing, now missing.

Dominion Takes Steps To Tighten Hold On War Industry And Activities

OTTAWA, July 3.—Moves to tighten wartime discipline and regulations imposed upon individual activities, natural resources and industry became apparent on Parliament Hill today.

A series of amendments moved how government activities are moving towards a more complete mobilization of the nation's resources for war and a sharper limitation on the activities of individuals active in counter to the national purpose.

The developments included: 1.—Creation by order-in-council of a war industry control committee, each member of which is clothed with wide powers over some branch of industry.

2.—A recommendation from a special committee of the House of Commons for stiffer penalties, including death, for obstructing the enemy.

3.—Announcement that aircraft needed for the war effort will be available from Canada and other North American sources for the war effort.

4.—Announcement that the Civilian Merchandising Company, a government-owned corporation designed to stimulate a surplus of machine tools and equipment necessary for war industry, was in full operation. It will coordinate production and procurement of machine tools throughout the Dominion.

5.—Announcement that 1,000 tradesmen a week are being enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force in advance of mobilization.

HOME DEFENCE TRAINING. Meantime officers and officials of the department of national defence are working on plans for training thousands of men for home defence purposes.

However, men will not be called up for compulsory service for some time as training facilities will be limited. Men will be called up under the recent amendments to the National Defence Act.

All militiamen will probably get a prolonged period of training in camp before the home defence forces are called up under the recent amendments to the National Defence Act.

The war industries control board will consist of the steel, oil, metal and rubber industries, and will be under the department of munitions and supply and any other controls.

Organized as a board they will discuss common problems and adapt their policies to the needs of the foreign exchange control board.

Dutch Commander Prisoner Of War Despatches Claim. AMSTERDAM, July 3.—Gen. H. G. Winkelman, Dutch commander-in-chief, has been transported to Germany as a war prisoner, it was announced today.

German authorities claimed Winkelman and other members of the Netherlands army "by their personal behavior" had committed the most heinous crimes against the Dutch people.

Col. L. G. Schwabedissen was appointed German commander-in-chief of the Netherlands army in the Netherlands.

He left the local airport Tuesday on a train for Germany, having arrived from Halifax on a connecting plane and is flying all the way to Germany.

Speaking of his experience, he stated he signed on as a fireman on a Dutch ship, the "Holland," and from there he reached England and then went to France. On a trip to the Netherlands, he was captured by German soldiers and taken to a camp.

He missed seeing one great air battle, but the Royal Air Force, he said, is far superior to the German. One R.A.F. fighter, he said, was shot down by a German plane, but he did not make any difference to the Germans, the youthful pilot was killed.

Every Fire Has A Cause

Unless the cause is reasonably certain,
every fire that occurs at this hectic time
should be a subject of thorough investigation. That which occurred in Edmonton's wholesale district over the week-end is to be probed, with a view to finding the origin. This should be made the rule, here and elsewhere, when there is no known reason why a fire might start at the time and place.

There have been several fires in Edmonton during recent weeks, rather more than usual at this time of the year. Perhaps none of them was set. Every one may have originated in circumstances
implying nothing in the way of sabotage.
But this is no time to take chances. It cannot be assumed that every alien enemy in the country is a person of honesty and good sense; and it takes only one malicious person to start a blaze.

The Watch On The Danube

German air forces have been sent to Rumania, to see that Stalin does not grab
any more territory than the two provinces which were ceded to him by King Carol at the muzzle of Soviet guns. So far as Rumania is concerned, the situation is not thereby changed. Its independence is gone, and the only question is whether its people are to take orders from Moscow or Berlin. Sovereignty vanished in fact when Hitler's henchmen were called into the cabinet and given control of the country.

The Nazi airmen are not there to protect Rumania in the exercise of its functions as a free state, but to make sure that the area not already occupied by Russia shall remain under the German dominance already established. Being there for that purpose, they will have to remain, and be reinforced in proportion as Russian troops are moved into Bessarabia and Bucovina. Adolf dare not trust Josef,
and is taking no chances.

That the Fuehrer and his barter ally
will come to blows at once is not likely.
If they should, Stalin will have to be the aggressor. Hitler has all of Rumania he particularly wanted at present; the oil wells and the wheat fields. But these resources are not clear gain. He will have to maintain a garrison in the country to keep them out of Russian hands, and this means a weakening of the forces he could otherwise employ against the Allies.

Exit Balbo

British authorities deny that Marshal Balbo was killed in action. The pretence that he met death in the way was too absurd to gain credence anywhere outside Italy; if even there any person believed the story. The idea of a dove officials climbing into a bomber and going up to try conclusions with trained fighters is highly romantic, but it just does not happen. It certainly did not happen with the consent of so experienced a flier as Balbo.

The plane may have crashed by accident, as many planes have crashed. If not, the inference is pretty clear that somebody tampered with the machinery, probably under instructions from Rome, or in knowledge that his action would be approved there. It is no secret that Balbo was a nuisance and more or less menace to Mussolini, with whose policy of truckling to Hitler he did not agree. He was sent to Libya as a political exile whose presence in Rome might be dangerous.

The decision to subject Italy to all the losses and risks of war for the sake of Germany cannot have been other than gross folly in Balbo's judgment, and he was not a man who always succeeded in keeping his opinions to himself. His opposite number is Von Fritsch, whose policies ended in his death in Poland under circumstances which aroused deep and general suspicion among German officers of the old school. Italian officers will ask themselves similar questions about the curious and curiously-timed death of Balbo.

Removing The Barriers

The military authorities have modified the physical standards demanded of those who would enlist in the Active Service forces of the Dominion. To be something less than five feet four inches in height will no longer bar enlistment; one may join up if he is five feet or more in stature.
The chap with imperfect teeth will no longer be rejected if the defects are such as can be corrected. Eyesight and hearing need not be so acute as hitherto required.

The meaning of course is that men are now seen to be needed in larger number than was supposed when the original regulations were drawn up. The drastic change in the situation overseas which demanded the immediate raising of a third and fourth Division is also the obvious reason for easing the conditions for enlistment.

Our fighting forces will be no less efficient because of this broadening of the field of eligibles. The famous Bantam Battalions in the former war showed that small men can hold their own with the big fellows in the rough and tumble of a modern war. And not all the men who fought then with splendid effectiveness could boast perfection of vision, hearing and teeth; probably few of them could score 100 per cent on all counts.

The primary consideration is willingness to serve, and the modifying of the standards in these respects will open the door to thousands of men who had the will but fell short in one way or another of the very exacting physical requirements.

opposite river bank. The enemy was kept in

was turned by a party of marines under Major Johnston, who rushed and occupied one of the salient points within some time. The Germans sullenly downed two guns and then crossed the river and captured them. The army was next occupied by the combined forces. Determined to attack the army the following relieving forces arrived from Tien Tsin, while it was evacuated and the entire force returned to this point.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

One of the most valued and useful gifts to the Allies is now on its way across the Atlantic.
Weighing a little over ten tons, it is valued at over $500,000. Weight for weight it is vastly more valuable than tons of tanks and airplanes.
The gift is of serums, vitamins, hormones, the most modern drugs and surgical instruments. They were on display by 400 leading manufacturers of pharmaceutical preparations and medical supplies at the recent annual convention in New York of the American Medical Association. The exhibit was open only to members of the medical profession, and was visited by 12,765 doctors.

At the end of the convention someone suggested that the exhibit would be greatly welcomed by the Allies. A vote of the exhibitors was taken, and in the original packing cases they were sent to Europe.

Before ever President Roosevelt formed his coalition cabinet by inviting Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson to preside over the departments of Navy and War, some striking evidences were given of American realization that Britain is fighting to keep an invader out of United States. A federal judge in bankruptcy at Newark, N.J., George W.
Porter, before opening his court invited the 200 lawyers and litigants to join in silent prayer for the Allies.

A professor of the Harvard Law School,
Sidney P. Simpson, in accepting the Knox Alumni Achievement Award, reviewed the situation in Europe, South America and the Far East, and said, "They are all loaded with dynamite."
The question is not whether we can keep America out of war, but whether we can keep war out of America. . . . As an officer for over twenty years in the reserve corps of the United States Army, I'd rather defend United States in France than in New York, California or Illinois."

Prof. Simpson is a Republican who now stands behind President Roosevelt.

Announcing last week the torpedoing of the British armed merchantman S.S. Andania—luckily without loss of life—the press seems to have overlooked the great sea duel which the Andania fought in the opening two weeks of the first World War, with the German armed liner Cap Trafalgar. In the eyes of the British, the sea-
fight in the old tradition, with two ships of equal size and weight of armament, hurling
broadside at each other.

The Andania, then owned by the Cunard
S.S. Co. had been taken off the New York-Liverpool run, with 6-inch guns and despatched to the South Atlantic in search of armed raiders.
Off the coast of Brazil she sighted the Cap Trafalgar, a new liner built by the Germans for the South American trade, which had been armed as a commerce raider. The two vessels closed with their guns firing.

The Germans trained their guns on the deck
batteries and navigation controls of the Andania;
the British gunners concentrated their fire on the hull of the Cap Trafalgar at the waterline.
The Andania sustained damage to her upper works, but the British gunners were so satisfied of seeing the big German liner heave over and sink as the sea rushed in through the holes made by their fire.

The sea victory, coming as it did in the first few days of the war, was a vessel of equal size and power, not only rid the seas of a fleet German raider before she had time to sink an Allied merchantman, but set a mark of British supremacy in sea warfare.

A new book on Bernard Shaw—"The Real Bernard Shaw" by Maurice Colbourne—if it does nothing else, should encourage young authors on the long tiring trail up Mount Parnassus. Probably no one is a better authority on Shaw and his work than Colbourne, who has not only written about Shaw,
"G. B. S." HAS
HIS TROUBLES

but has produced and acted himself in his plays. Shaw was a clerk before he was a critic, and he says, "Do not suppose I am a man of letters that I never tried to earn an honest living. I began to try to commit that sin against my better nature when I was 15, and persevered. I was a successful timidity and diffidence, until I was 23."

In his beginning, Shaw forced himself to write five sheets a day—no more, no less, even if he finished his day's work in the middle of a sentence. No one would publish his first novel —or his second—or his third—or his fourth, or his fifth. At the end of nine years in London, supported by his mother's small income, Shaw had earned 15 shillings as an author. Not till he turned to playwrighting and wrote "Widower Houses," which dramatized the evils of slum landlordism, did he "wake up to find himself infamous." It had taken seven years to complete the play, because he had used the whole of a plot suggested by William Archer, in the first half of the first act."

What thews and sinews! Only a man who felt he had something to say would persevere
in face of such discouragement.

Perhaps, after all, Mr. Bennett is in the right

Problem for the U.S.

President Roosevelt's reply to the tragic message from Paul Reynaud, the French Prime Minister, makes it fairly plain that he is prepared to help the Allies to the very limit of his power; but that this cannot go to the extent of furnishing military aid since this rests within the power of Congress.

The case for non-intervention in a military sense probably seems to be as strong to the people of the United States today as the case for complete neutrality seemed to be to those who gave it their ardent support less than a year ago.
Both attitudes have been based upon misunderstandings. The argument for complete neutrality derived its strength from a widely held belief that the issues of the war did not affect the interests of the United States and that therefore,
though a victory for the Allies was to be preferred, victory for Nazi Germany would not be much more than the triumph of one brand of imperialism.

This incredible popular hallucination has been pretty well knocked out by the course of events. However, the war originated—and upon this point there will be more and more discussions of less and less importance—it no sooner entered into its violent phase than there was a recognition in the United States that this was not a war of chiding interests and rival imperialisms at all, but a battle to the death between the democratic conception of society and of political organization and a monstrous conception of absolutism based upon the destruction of civilization as it has been developed over the past two thousand years by the blending of Greek wisdom, Roman law and the ethical and religious teachings of the Christian church.

With this enlargement of understanding
there was a startling change in United States opinion fittingly represented by the complete reversal within two weeks by the United States Senate of its earlier decision. It has become unanimous, not to permit the roundabout sale of government material to the Allies. The President's engagement, which goes to the limit of his power, is also the result of this amazingly rapid change in public opinion. The United States has moved within a year from complete neutrality to a neutrality partial to the Allied cause; and from this neutrality to a non-belligerent association with the Allies.

At this point it is evident, American opinion wants to stay or at any rate to tarry. The reasons for this are obvious and they would be conclusive if it were not for one consideration which the people of the United States refuse to recognize, with its necessary implications.
What they will not see as yet is that they are in this war and that there is no road out of it for them except ultimate victory or ultimate defeat; and that the before their policy should be governed by long-time views and not by short-term expedients of supposed temporary advantage. A Germany triumphant in Europe and with the resources of that continent at its disposal will proceed to set upon us according to the United States; and no American of sense and vision ought to be under illusions on this score.
The German Consul-General at New Orleans has said as much to the great indignation of the American people, but he has told them the truth
and they should be thankful to him.

It is greatly creditable to the American people that as the real issue emerged they moved almost instinctively to the relief and support of the Allies. They did this under the leadership of President Roosevelt, who appears to have been more fully alive to the menace to civilization of Nazism than any other national leader in the world. He has brought bravely for more than two years to impact on his countrymen his judgment upon Nazism and his apprehensions that an attempt would be made to extend it by the sword. It is less than two years ago since he called representative Senators into council to advise them of his fears;
all he succeeded in doing was to give the late Senator Borah an opportunity to tell the President that the reason why he should not be sure which he claimed to be superior, he could assure him that there was no basis for his alarmist views: there was no threat from Nazism; there would be no European war, and so forth.

Two years ago since he called a public opinion
in the United States—unfortunately very much in the minority as yet—which would have the country enter the war forthwith. Against this there is the argument which is said to satisfy both Congress and the admirers of Mr. Mc-Cord that if the United States should enter the war it could make no contribution beyond what is already possible under Roosevelt's pledge to Reynaud. The fallacy of this argument may only be apparent to the American people when it is very much too late. Active participation in the war would, apart altogether from matters of material, bring a moral support to the Allies
which might mean the difference between victory and defeat—Winnipeg Free Press.

Praises Theatre Men

Editor, Bulletin: I was glad to see that the theatre men of Canada have changed the date of the "Win
the War" show from Sunday,
Monday, July 15, to Saturday,
July 14. We can never win the war by disobedience to the command of God, to "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy."
We are all trying to win the war,
let us do it from the right motives,
and for the glory of God and we are sure to win. We cannot do evil that good may come. That is where we have made so many mistakes. Let us do good without our failures to go in the right direction in future. Right always wins in the end. Let us stand together and pray unitedly for victory.

Protests Sunday Shows

Editor, Bulletin: As a member of the Lord's Day Observance Society permits me to offer a formal protest to the suggestion to open the theatres on Sundays in order to raise money for the war. We profess to be fighting on the side of righteousness against the powers of evil, under the demon possessed of the Lord's hand is not to prosper if we break the law of the God we profess to serve.
God has said: "If thou wilt turn away thy foot from doing thy pleasure on my Holy Day, and call the Sabbath a delight—not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words—the Lord's hand is shortened that He cannot save—but your iniquities have separated between you and your God." Ps. 50 and 104.
Yours sincerely,

McCoy Health Service

When there are continued symptoms of ill health, it is advisable to have the eyes examined in order to make sure that no eye defect exists.
If such a defect is found to be present, it is advised that the patient be fitted with suitable glasses in order that he may see in a relaxed
way without any needless strain.
Faulty eyesight may produce such symptoms as irritability, dizziness,
headache, nausea and nervousness.
However, in the same way that defective vision may affect other parts of the body, so poor physical condition may also affect the vision.
The eyes are fed by exactly the same bloodstream which feeds the rest of the body and when the quality of that blood is impaired, the eyes may suffer in consequence.
Eye trouble may be partly due to faulty diet, or to sunstroke, or to infection. In some cases, it will be due entirely to such causes and the vision will soon return to normal
when these causes are removed.
Eye specialists are now well aware that the physical condition of the patient may affect the eyesight and many letters are received from readers of this column asking how the eyes are examined and have been told that there is nothing wrong with the eyes. However, the fact that the eyes are examined and the eye symptoms are due to constitution or to digestive disturbances.

We are familiar with the dentists telling us our tooth trouble is partly due to faulty diet and now the eye specialists are telling us that poor eyesight may likewise be partly due to wrong diet or to a systemic toxemia.

The eyes are delicate organs, responding quickly to any upset in digestion and the patient with stomach trouble may notice that the vision is blurred and that he is unable to see as well as usual. Or, the eyes may feel tired or heavy when the digestion is out of order.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I have the best of husbands and a nice home, but my heart is breaking over the way my only child treats me. It isn't that her conduct causes me any anxiety. She is a good girl, a senior in high school and she gets fine marks, but she just won't confide in me. I long for her to tell me everything she does and thinks. I want to hear all about her friends and what they do, but she never has anything to say unless I ask her, and then she says no more than is necessary. Even when I would like her to tell me about her friend's house as late as 10 o'clock at night, all she says is "I don't want to." I crave companionship and friendly people about me, and it makes me so unhappy for my daughter to act so cold and indifferent toward me. Can you suggest a method of handling her?

A SAD MOTHER.

Answer: Yes, I can, but it is one that you will not like and perhaps you are conditionally unable to follow it. It is to let the poor girl alone and quit trying to pry into her thoughts and check up on all she does. Respect her privacy.

Also, recognize that the girl is what nature made her, just as you are. You never tire of the sound of your own voice and you are just bound to talk everything over with anybody who will listen to you, and to tell everything you know, while speech comes hard to your daughter.

It is unfortunate when girls do not, as the phrase goes, take after their mothers and have the same characteristics, because it makes for congeniality for them to like the same things and enables them to get along better together.

But if they aren't, there is nothing she can do about it. Old Mother Nature had the first say in the matter.

There is no complaint that mothers make often against their daughters than that they don't confide in them. Somehow, mothers feel that they have a right to probe into their daughters' most secret thoughts and feelings, and they feel much aggrieved when they don't "come clean."

And often a girl doesn't tell

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRD

"Oh let him have a taste of this pudding. There isn't anything in it that can hurt him."

No one is able to say that this or that food will actually be dangerous to a child, because that would be very hard to prove. But it should be obvious that when we accustom the child to highly-flavored foods, intended to appeal to the jaded appetites of adults, we spoil the child's taste for those simple, blandly-flavored foods which are the foundation of his own diet.

Also, we determine the discipline which should extend toward foods. Baby should see that his foods and those of his parents are entirely different. Baby eats in the kitchen and eats what is put into his own sectioned plate. As he gets old enough to graduate to the family table he discovers that he still has his own foods with none or only a limited selection of those cooked for the parents.

If he is never given a taste of this or that, with the excuse that so little can't possibly hurt him, he will never lose the belief that his foods are for him alone, and the other food at the table are just for adults.

Even if the child suffers no noticeable harm from eating rich foods or highly-spiced foods or fat meats or spiced meats or seedy berries or melons on one day, he does not do him any good. Children's diets are very important in that they are the only sources from which he derives energy and heat and material for cell growth with sufficient excess to be deposited as fat. With the use of depriving the child of an appetite for the foods he vitally needs in order to appease the adult's desire to give him a treat.

Better to lean over backward and keep children's food and adults' food strictly separated than to open the dike and then have no further control over the child's desire to eat what he sees others eating.

Our leaflet on "Food for Young Children" offers some recipes for foods suitable to the young child. To obtain a copy of it send your request with three recently stamped, self-addressed envelopes to Mrs. Eldred of the Your Baby and Mine department in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Myrtle Meyer Eldred will answer your questions about diet, general care and management of children if you will send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter to Mrs. Eldred of the Your Baby and Mine department in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

We have heard rumors about the lady who conscientiously ate up her diet and then, with a clear conscience and unabated appetite, proceeded to enjoy her usual fare. But we didn't believe it until the other day.

There she sat, at the next table. She had ordered a luncheon that she had positively meagre—just plain lettuce, hard-boiled egg, melba toast, and butter milk, and that's all.

And we thought, with a glow of admiration, "There's a gallant soul who has seen the error of overeating and is trying to slim down."

That's what we thought. Then we saw the waitress bringing her dessert. And we said, "No! It can't be!" But it was. It was a model!

That finishing gastronomic gesture represented several times as many calories as contained in her diet.

Later on we button-holed the hostess of the restaurant for more data about the customer who was biding time with overeating, and she confided that some of the patrons regularly order a calorie diet for the first part of the meal; and then top off with an extra dessert. Apparently, their feeling is that they've earned it.

So now we are afraid that the course taken by a good many of the overweight who are forever "dieting" without getting any thinner.

Perhaps what is needed is a Keely cure for the dessert addict!

DESSERT CURE
If you can't seem to let dessert alone and it is the main thing that is standing between you and a good figure, you might give this plan a try.

First, eat nothing but desserts—just desserts—for breakfast, luncheon, dinner, and anytime in between that you feel like eating. Before the end of the second day, you ought to have the same hearty looking for sweets as the little boy who took the dough-nut cure.

Seeing a young friend spend his nickel for dough-nuts, he said, with a pained expression,

"I'm never going to eat that again."

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly
Sign Of Stein
Sidelights
Civics Praised

THIS beer stein is the dominating symbol in the career of Tony Galento. He rose to fame by training for his fights on large steins of foaming beer and he raked in a herd of shekels by supplying similar steins to the thousands who came to his tavern to get a look at him.

And now he has been scuttled by a beer stein—one heaved by his very own little brother—Russell Galento.

Here's the inside story as told together by the British United Press. Russell dropped in at Tony's beer parlor in Orange, N.J., on Sunday evening last for the first time since he had been scuttled by his brother. Tony said he would not let his brother see him, but he would let him see him. Tony said he would not let his brother see him, but he would let him see him. Tony said he would not let his brother see him, but he would let him see him.

Somewhere I can't see this Baer as being as hopeless as some of the sport writers paint him. There is a lot about him that is still impressive. I wouldn't sell him too short even against Joe Louis. It takes only one good wallop in the right place to win and Max used to have one of the best punches in the business.

Odds and Ends From the Brawl

Dempsy appears to be in financial difficulties again after being a millionaire and is starting a barnstorming tour which he will make a bunch of third-raters. On the other hand, it may only be his way of getting down after the emotional strain that the breaking up of his second marriage has brought.

Fine Tribute To Civics

HARRY SCOTT, sports editor of the Calgary Alberta, paid a tribute to the Edmonton Civics in his column after reporting on the fight between the two principals.

The fight between the two principals lasted freely at the end of the seventh round. The referee, who was not present when Max Baer, right, pounded Tony Galento, left, out of the picture via a technical knockout at the end of the seventh round.

"To take the field without Curly Johnson is like asking Yankees to play without Joe Di Maggio, but the Northerners made little of the handicap and clearly proved their superiority right from the opening pitch. It was too bad that Callies should choose such an important game for their poorest display of the season, but the shame of Oshiver, Freeman and, for half of the game, Law, disgraced them at the start and they were never allowed to settle down afterwards.

"Dat Bum" Beat Tony

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, July 3.—Patty Berg, the freckle-faced red head from Minneapolis, will receive $7,500 annually for becoming a professional golfer. That's $145 weekly. Quite a job of dough for a girl just 22 years old taking her first job.

Referee Stops Bout At Start Of Eighth

JERSEY CITY, N.J., July 3.—Max Baer sprang the year's biggest fight upset last night by stopping Tony Galento at the start of the eighth round of their scheduled 15-round fight before a crowd estimated at 30,000. Tony was a 1 to 2 favorite.

Referee Joe Mangold, examining Tony's cut, bleeding mouth in the one-minute rest period between the seventh and eighth rounds, stopped the fight just as the bell sounded to start the eighth, and officials announced the fight was halted in that session.

Galento's handlers announced at the end of the fight that Tony's mouth was cut and bleeding. The fight was stopped at the start of the eighth round. The fight was stopped at the start of the eighth round.
